Roman Coins Long Hidden.

Discovery of Roman coins has just been made by a workman at Balgrogan Quarry, in the parish of Stoneykirk, Scotland. While the quarrymen were removing soil from the top of the rock they came upon a large number of coins about a foot from the surface. On a further search being made over a hundred bronze coins were found, some of them in excellent preservation. They represent the reigns of five or six Roman emperors and empresses, and the portraits and figures of men in various attitudes of the chase and war are in many cases remarkably distinct. Part of an urn or baked clay was also found with the coins. It is ribbed on the inside, and probably contained the ashes of ancient warriors, as well as being a repository for the coins. It is believed that the coins have lain where they were found for a thousand years. Articles of antiquarian interest have already been found in the district.

Couldn't Keep Up With Himself. They were giving the author of the famous pamphlet, "Be Punctual," a complimentary dinner. It was half an hour beyond the announced time. "What are we waiting for?" inquired a nervous guest. "The author."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
